Dear Sample A Sample:

We are writing to let you know that our vendor American Medical Collection Agency (AMCA) has notified Laboratory Corporation of America Holdings (LabCorp) about a security incident AMCA experienced that may have involved certain personal information about you. LabCorp's systems were not affected by this incident. AMCA is an external collection agency that was used by LabCorp and other companies. LabCorp referred patient balances to AMCA only when our direct collection efforts were unsuccessful.

LabCorp was informed on May 14, 2019 that AMCA may have experienced unauthorized activity on its web payment page. Upon learning of this event, LabCorp promptly stopped sending new collection requests to AMCA and stopped AMCA from continuing to work on any pending LabCorp collection requests. AMCA has told us it appears that an unauthorized user had access to their system between August 1, 2018 and March 30, 2019 and that they cannot rule out the possibility that personal information on AMCA's system was at risk during that time period. The information on AMCA's affected system may have included name, address, and balance information for the patient and person responsible for payment, along with the patient's phone number, date of birth, referring physician, and date of service. In addition, your health insurance information may have been included, and because some insurance carriers utilize the Social Security Number as a subscriber identification number, your Social Security Number may have been affected. No ordered tests, laboratory test results, or diagnostic information were in the AMCA affected system.

As a precaution to protect against potential misuse of health information, we recommend that you regularly monitor any explanation of benefits statements received from your health plan to check for any unfamiliar health care services. If you notice any discrepancy on one of these statements, please contact your health plan.
