SCDCA Appoints Director of Consumer Services Division

COLUMBIA, S.C. – Carri Grube Lybarker, Administrator of the South Carolina Department of Consumer Affairs (SCDCA), announces the appointment of Amanda Self as Director of Consumer Services Division.

Self will oversee the department's Consumer Services Division, which mediates consumer complaints against businesses, seeking to find equitable solutions for the consumer and the business, including refunds, adjustments and credits to consumer accounts. SCDCA receives approximately 4,000 consumer complaints annually.

Self is a 1992 graduate of Francis Marion College and holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Political Science. Upon graduation, she earned an ABA Certification in Corporate Law from the National Center for Paralegal Training. She began her career with Fleet Funding in Florence, S.C specializing in default services. Self has spent 24 years working in various sectors of the mortgage banking industry, including foreclosure, bankruptcy, and bank owned properties.
